Christian World Education
on the Campus

"To change the heart of humanity is a task that can only be achieved by a world-wide force working in the spirits and the minds of men everywhere. It is a task of educating people of all races in a new spirit. Indeed the world-situation can—from this point of view—be summed up in H. G. Wells' vivid phrase, 'a race between education and catastrophe.'

That task of education on a world-scale may sound impossible. It is nothing of the kind. It is as practicable as it is thrilling. As we have just seen, it is already begun among the races of Asia and Africa in the new student leadership. It is when we look at the world of men, not as they are, but as knowledge and a spirit of good-will can make them, that we get a glimpse of the incalculable good that lies ahead.

It is a stupendous task. Like the glittering peak of Mount Everest it challenges our highest strategy and tests lung and sinew to the limit of endurance. But we are the sons of men who have not been afraid to cross uncharted seas and to break into new continents. Our blood pulses with the life-force of fathers who fought many fights for freedom; who pioneered in every continent; who tunnelled impassable mountain barriers and drove new roads across old wastes. But the end of their exploration is only the beginning of blazing our new world-trail."

—From "The Clash of Colour," by Basil Mathews.

CHRISTIAN WORLD EDUCATION ON THE CAMPUS

These suggestions are offered for the use of Missionary and World Fellowship Committees of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the Missionary Society, and similar religious organizations.

Prepared by

The Council of Christian Associations' Committee on Christian World Education Student Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions.

FOREWORD

This pamphlet contains suggestions as to how the process of Christian world education may begin on the campus. It is written on the assumption that such education is concerned not only with what we call missionary education, but also with those national and international issues and projects which forward or hold back the cause of world brotherhood and peace.

Additional copies of this pamphlet may be secured from State or Field Secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. and traveling secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement, or through the Committee on Christian World Education at their national headquarters:

Y. M. C. A., 347 Madison Avenue, New York City;

Y. W. C. A., 600 Lexington Avenue, New York City;

Student Volunteer Movement, 25 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Requests for information addressed to any of these headquarters will be handed to those best equipped to answer them. For specific information relating to the missionary enterprise, or to preparation for missionary service, it is suggested that students write direct to the Educational Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement, whose resources are available to all who desire to make use of them.

YOUR CAMPUS

Generally speaking, students on a campus may be roughly classified as follows:

Those who have no world outlook.

Those who have some interest in world affairs.

Those whose interest is vital and who are trying to find their relation to world problems.

Those who, having decided what that relation is, desire preparation for specific forms of life service.

In the light of these groupings the task of the World Fellowship or Missionary Committee is:

To create world consciousness.

To show the relation of Christian enterprises to world problems.

To supply facts which will enable the individual to discover his relation to such enterprises.

To suggest projects whereby students may share these ventures in world friendship.

CREATING WORLD CONSCIOUSNESS

Posters

"Photographs have the kind of authority over imagination today, which the printed word had yesterday, and the spoken word before that."—Walter Lippman in "Public Opinion."

Suggestions for making use of this truth as an asset in world education are found in

Posters and Poster-Making. This pamphlet contains suggestions as to topics, materials, and the general technique of poster-making. Eight typical posters illustrate the variety of subjects and treatment that is possible. Price, 25 cents.

Picture Sheet Series. Twenty sets of twelve-page folders on different countries. Each set, 25 cents. Descriptive circular sent on request.

The Call of the World. Eight pictures showing conditions and types of missionary service in various countries. 11x14 inches, in sepia and black and white. (In ordering specify which.) Price of set, 50 cents.

India, China, Japan. Set of six pictures on each country. Size and colors similar to those described in the paragraph above. Price of India set, 40 cents; Japan and China, 60 cents each.

Bits of New China. A scroll showing pictures of Chinese children, with rhymes 11x14 inches. Price, 25 cents.

Material may be ordered through Educational Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement.

Bulletin Boards

Newspapers and magazine articles and illustrations on international and missionary subjects.

A world map with clippings attached to margin; a string may be run from the clipping to a colored pin locating the area to which the article refers.

News on interracial and industrial issues.

Photographs and letters from missionaries in home and foreign service.

Developments in Youth Movements.

---

Post only a few items at one time.

Change material frequently.

Choose material dealing with positive and constructive efforts to improve conditions.

Stereopticon Lectures

Many very beautiful slides, accompanied by typed lectures, are now available. Lists containing details as to subjects, rental fees, etc., may be obtained from

A suggestive list of lectures will be sent, on request, by the Educational Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement.

For information concerning moving pictures write Publicity Department, Y. W. C. A., 600 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

Plays and Pageants

Dramatic presentation serves to make vivid international and missionary problems.

Study groups often put into dramatic form significant facts which have been brought out in their discussion.

Several original plays dealing with Christian World Service have been produced by students.

An example of how the project method may be worked in missionary education will be found in a pamphlet entitled "A Parish Program of Missionary Education," by John Clark Archer, price 40 cents.

The Educational Secretaries of the Student Volunteer Movement will be glad to furnish a list of published plays and pageants and offer suggestions.

The College Paper

Items of interest regarding graduates of the college engaged in work of international and missionary significance.

Interviews with visitors from abroad and missionaries on furlough.

Publicity on some college missionary project.

Letters from missionaries and world travelers known to the student body.

Articles on Youth Movements.

Exchanges with student publications of other countries.

Items from current magazines on international and missionary topics.

Articles dealing with race relations in this country and throughout the world.

Editorials and articles on the significance of international events.

Brief reviews of or quotations from new books dealing with topics suggested above.

The local World Fellowship Committee may render real service to editors and reporters in bringing to their attention items such as those suggested above.

Live and Learn—Simultaneously

One of the most vital processes of Christian World Education is the relating of knowledge to life through participation in such activities as:

Entire or partial support of some definite home or foreign missionary project:

A graduate of the local college in some missionary service.

Chair in a mission college.

“Sister College” movement.

“Shares” in Farm and Cannery Migrant Work.

Support of Student Friendship Fund.

Community welfare work conducted by students.

Creation of vital fellowship among students of all races and nations on the campus.

Choice of summer employment from the standpoint of securing social data:

Service under home mission boards, in rural parishes, or with farm and cannery migrants.

Daily Vacation Bible Schools.

Work in Labrador mission (Dr. Grenfell).

Student social and industrial groups of the Christian Associations.

Student rural groups of the Christian Associations.

FOR LITERATURE CORRESPONDENCE AND ORDERS

In order to avoid confusion and prevent delay in answering letters and filling orders, it is requested that the following instructions be observed:

Orders for Books

Where not possible to deal through the local bookseller, orders may be sent to the Committee on Christian World Education at any one of the addresses given in the Foreword.

Binding

All orders should clearly specify binding desired. When this is neglected, correspondence is made necessary, causing delay in shipment.

Remittances

Remittances should accompany all orders. Remit by New York draft, express order or postoffice money order.

If currency is sent, it is at the risk of the purchaser.

C. O. D. Orders

When an order without a remittance is received, the books will be sent C. O. D. at the expense of the purchaser.
